

Global University selects CAMS® Enterprise ERP to bolster its continuing worldwide distance-education expansion

St. Louis — December 14, 2010 — Global University, a worldwide distance-education leader serving students in 150 countries, has chosen CAMS® Enterprise, flagship product of Three Rivers Systems Inc., as its new academic enterprise resource planning system to manage its entire student lifecycle and accommodate its burgeoning growth.

From a network of 234 offices around the world, Global University's unique continuous-enrollment model allows students to start classes anytime, anywhere, whether they are seeking degrees, continuing education or enrichment classes. Currently more than 300,000 students are studying evangelism and discipleship through Global University's School for Evangelism and Discipleship. About 6,500 full-time students are seeking undergrad and graduate degrees, and 15,400 students are actively enrolled in Berean School of the Bible, an adult continuing education Bible study program. All told, Global University has served more than 10 million students worldwide during the past 50 years.

"As a growing, international on-demand institution translating materials into more than 126 languages for students spread across the globe, we need an academic management system as dynamic, flexible and scalable as we are," Global University President Dr. Gary SeEVERS said.

"CAMS Enterprise, we found, is the only ERP that can meet our stringent operational requirements and expansion needs. With degree programs for undergraduate and master's level students, Global plans to start offering doctoral degrees," SeEVERS added. "CAMS Enterprise will enable us to organize our business processes and streamline our operations to meet the demands of our current and future administrative and academic workload."
